Lights for Rest-Room But None for Exhibits in the Smithsonian

When I was in Washington the first of the month I complained to a guard about the poor lighting in the main building of the Smith-sonian Institution and told him I was going to write a memo to congress when I got back home.

I suppose there are a thousand questions more important right now than the matter of why our national museum is kept so dark that it is difficult enough to se the exhibits, let alone try to take pictures of them. Nevertheless the question should be looked into. The guard to whom I complained said nearly all the visitors squawked about the poor lighting.

The main Smithsonian building is an ancient piece of architecture with poorly arranged windows to begin with, and its electric lights are so feeble you can't make out the exhibits even in daylime. Over in the new building where the fossil remains of the great reptiles of antiquity are shown it is a different story. The new building has big windows and fine lighting. Unfortunately most of the things people want to see first are in the old building - things like automobiles, wood-burning locomotives, the original Wright airplane, and Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis.

Poor lighting isn't the normal thing in Washington. What the Smithsonian is suffering from is

Ironically enough, the only spot in the old building that is brilliant-I suppose the plumbing of the venerable structure finally gave out, and while the authorities were putting in new plumbing they added modern lights - in this one room.

It's a bizarre experience, walking out of a 20th century lavatory into the darkness of the Smithsonian's enchanted aisles.

I'll send this piece on to Washington, with another copy to the Smithsinian institution for that guard who talked so frankly when I com-

Take it Easy you don't have to prove a thing!

ET's be sensible about this subject of liorsepower.

An all-American tackle doesn't go around tackling people in everyday life.

A world-record aprinter doesn't have to demonstrate his prowess on city side-The better you are, the less you have to

And that's how it is with a Buick

Of course it's a spectacular performera car with instantly responsive action.

It has to be, for this one combines a high-compression 200-horsepower V8 engine with a nimble weight of only 3866 pounds as it comes off the assembly line.

That's a power-to-weight ratio that chalks up a new record—a ratio that no other Buick has ever reached before. It can spin your wheels on a dry pavement if you give it the gun, but why waste rubber ? If some show-off wants to get the jump on you at a traffic light, why not let him have fun? He isn't kidding anyone but himself, when the name on your oar is CENTURY. The real pride of owning such a car is simply this: You know so well what it can do that you never have to prove it.

That lets you enjoy the tireless ease of its gait in ordinary driving, when only a fraction of its eager power is working. It gives you a quick reserve for breasting a hill—and the happy knowledge that there's still more to come in a sudden emergency.

Sure, this is more power than most people really have to have. But you can hardly call it extravagant, when you are buying more horsepower per dollar in a CBNTURY than you get in any other car in America.
